

Steve Knackstedt

Northern Pacific Airways

VP Global Partnerships

Steve is using his experience from Continental Airlines, Cologne-Bonn Airport and Hahn Air to launch Northern Pacific Airways using Anchorage as a hub, connecting cities in the USA with Japan and S. Korea. NPA will provide connectivity for Ravn Alaska, using the same IATA code 7H and FFP, Flycoin. Flycoin, gives customers a better alternative where loyalty is not rewarded with a pseudo-form of currency with very limiting options, by creating a different cryptocurrency-based rewards program for the travel & hospitality industry to empower customers.

He led a worldwide sales team at Hahn Air which contributed to the largest interline network in the world, over 370 airlines. In addition facilitated the growth of the Hahn Air products allowing partner airlines to connect to worldwide markets.

As a consultant his role at Cologne-Bonn airport included long term strategy growth and airline route acquisition.

His initial operational, sales and administrative experience came at Continental Airlines, where he managed five airports, the international operations in Europe, S. America and Canada, Director Policies, Procedures and Training for all Continental airports and Sr. Country Director Germany and Scandinavia.

Steve holds a journalism and business administration degree from the University of Texas at Arlington, USA. His hobby, traveling, now 121 countries, fits perfectly with his global responsibilities at NPA allowing him to enjoy and further improve his knowledge about the different cultures of our clients.
