

Greg Toussaint is a Director at Edgar, Dunn & Company (EDC) and co-leads EDC's Travel Payments practice globally. He has more than 15 years of consulting payments experience with EDC in business strategy for clients in Asia, Europe, Middle East and the Americas.

Greg has worked in EDC's London, Sydney and Paris offices and has gained extensive knowledge of both retail and B2B payments, including card products, instant payments and alternative forms of payments while working with a wide range of organisations in payments including central banks, issuers and acquirers, international and domestic payment schemes, merchants and payment providers.

In particular, Greg has developed significant expertise in the travel payment space. Greg has worked extensively with both demand-side clients (e.g. airlines such as American Airlines, hotels such as AccorHotels, rail operators such as SNCF) and supply-side clients (e.g. schemes such as UATP, issuers such as AirPlus, BNP Paribas or WEX).

For instance, Greg led an extensive RFI and RFP process for IATA to select providers for IATA EasyPay (a pay-as-you-go wallet for travel agents) in more than 100 countries.

Greg holds a Masters in Applied Mathematics and Computer Sciences from both Grenoble Institute of Technology in France and Barcelona Tech (UPC) in Spain.