

Charisse Chisolm
Vice President, Business Development

As vice president, business development, Charisse Chisolm is responsible for identifying and evaluating new solutions and strategic partnerships that enhance UATP's core business of processing payments for the travel sector and drive incremental growth for the UATP Network.

Prior to joining UATP, Chisolm spent several years as vice president, partner management, at Elavon where she was responsible for vetting and executing mutually viable growth opportunities in collaboration with traditional and non-traditional payment partners such as Visa, MasterCard, American Express, Discover, China Union Pay, and PayPal. Chisolm brings more than 20 years of leadership expertise in strategic business development having worked in roles of increasing responsibility in the telecommunications, data services, wholesale automotive and financial services industries.

Chisolm earned her Bachelor of Science in Business Administration from the University of California at Berkeley and her Master of Science in Management from Georgia Institute of Technology.